SLIGHT DELAY IN CONSUMMATION OF THE BIG COKE MERGER PLANS.

Will Not Be Concluded Until Latter Part of Week But an Amicable Agreement Is Reached.

M'KNIGHT WAS IN UNIONTOWN

But Is Compelled to Go to New York and Will Return in Time to Meet Operators Friday and Saturday. Equitable Basis is Sought.

The final settlement of all differences between the operators and the merger managers concerning the prices of their properties and the terms of their taking over has been postponed until the latter part of the week but it is reported that an amicable agreement all around has been practically reached and that the merger will be ready for it concluding step next week

Charles McKnight representing the underwriting syndicate, arrived in Uniontown last evening and remained over until this morning, when he left for New York He will return to Uniontown Thursday evening and expects to remain there during Friday and Saturday John W Bollean, the field manager of the combine, who has had immediate charge of the options and appraisements, will also postpone his visit to the region until the latter part of the week. In all other respects the plans outlined in The Courier yesterday will be followed

In the meantime, the operators will confer together, and with George D Howell who is attorney for the merger The latter said this morning that most of the operators had after consideration expressed a willingness to meet the conditions of the McKnight letter and that no serious differences were apparent or expected.

"All we want to be satisfied about," as one operator expressed it, "is that everybody is going into the merger on the same basis, that is on an equitable basis. It's not so much the price set upon the plants, if the appraisements have followed the same lines and are fair. We are generally satisfied that the appraisements have been fair, and for that reason we are willing to go into the consolidation on that basis. Some of us will need a certain amount of cash to provide for outstanding indebtedness Some of the companies have underlying bond issues in large amounts which will have to be cashed in. It's going to take a bunch of money to provide for these demands alone But after we have gotten all the ready money we need from the sale of our plants, we would, if we took all cash, only have to invest the overplus in something else; and I don't know anything better than just the business we are in, if it is consolidated under the plan proposed. It will be absolutely without water, and its earning capacity will be much greater than the individual earning capacities of the plants in their present state of rivalry and rather extravagant cost of operation

"There will also be room for most of us in the big company as officers and directors, managers and superintendents A consolidation like this means the formation of a big industrial army with many captains, and the financiers who are backing it very naturally and very wisely want none but veterans on guard"

SIGN IS WRONG.

Advertiser Says That Coats Are Not Needed But Mercury Catches Him.

In spite of the sign in a department store window to effect that coats are not wanted this hot weather the male populace declines to part with that portion of wearing apparel, especially while the mercury hovers around 56, as it did this morning

The cold snap has been unusual for this time of the year, it being four degrees colder this morning than yesterday. During yesterday afternoon the temperature rose to 75, but dropped as night fell and remained cool thereafter.

MAKES A RECORD.

WORKMEN RETURN.

Three Hundred More Men Back In McKees Rocks Shops.

PITTSBURG, July 20—(Special) Three hundred additional workmen of the striking employes of the Pressed Steel Car Company went to work this morning including 50 workers who are wiring the new Hudson River tunnel cars It is said that there are only six more cars to wire

The largest meeting yet held by the strikers occurred this morning A permanent organization of the strikers was made On account of some deputies being short of cash Sheriff Gumbert last night gave each man $5 to tide them over until warrants for their work have been drawn

NO CHANGE AT PRESENT.

P. & L. E Trainmen's Committee Confer With Schoonmaker.

Representatives of the engineers and firemen employed on the Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad held a conference yesterday with Colonel J M Schoonmaker, Vice President and adjutst the controversy regarding the proposed change in the location of headquarters There will be no changes for the present.

Some weeks ago orders were given that headquarters of the engineers and firemen would be moved from McKees Rocks to Newell south of Pittsburg They objected to this plan as many of them had property at McKees Rocks After voting on the question, a special committee was appointed to confer with General Manager J B Yohe The men explained why they objected to the company's plans and General Manager Yohe pointed out the benefits to the men that would result from the change

It was finally agreed to hold the matter over until the return of Vice President Schoonmaker from the northwest.

WORK BEGUN IN EAST WAYNESBURG

New Street Railway Company Files Bond as Guarantee of Good Faith.

WAYNESBURG, July 20—The Waynesburg & Monongahela Street Railway Company started work on its proposed road in East Waynesburg yesterday The work consisted in grading on Race street. Previous to the commencement of the work the company filed a bond of $2,000 with the East Waynesburg Council as a guarantee that the work would be completed and that parts of the franchise would be fulfilled. This week the company expects to start work in Jefferson borough. A bond has also been filed with the Council of Jefferson borough.

Two cars of machinery, consisting of a stone crusher, engine etc, have arrived in Waynesburg. The crusher and engine will be placed in a few days and everything made ready to begin laying track. Some of the ties and rails for the road are expected to be in Waynesburg in a few days

A deal will be closed in a few days with the Bonar Land Company for a tract of land located on the south side of the Waynesburg and Jefferson road near the double bridge on which the car barns will be located. This building will be 280x200 feet This will include the shops, offices and other buildings as well as the car barn. The building will be two stories and will be constructed of brick

POLICE COMMITTEE INSPECTS FORCE,

Some of the Members Are Gun Shy But Go Through the Motions.

COPPERS ALL SPICK AND SPAN

Revolvers, Without Shells, Nippers, Maces, Brass Buttons and Suits Are Sized Up and Given the Stamp of Approval.

A new departure in police circles was the inspection of the force by the Police Committee of Town Council last night At 7 30 all the officers of the force were marched into the Council room and looked over by the Committee of which John Dean is chairman

From Chief Rottler down the coppers were attired in their Sunday best. As a result of the inspection the force was highly complimented Buttons were bright and new, shoes polished, collars clean and equipment in the best of order

Upon lining up in the Council room, each officer was required to produce his revolver, mace and nippers, and all of these instruments were found in good condition Chairman Dean insisted that all cartridges be removed from the guns prior to the inspection Some of the committeemen gave evidences of being gun shy

It is said that these inspections will be a permanent feature of the Police Committee's work and in the future the officers will not be tipped off to look neat and natty for the occasion. The Committee expects every member of the force to present a good appearance at all hours

EXPECTS TRUE BILLS IN SAYLOR MURDER CASE

Prosecutor Expects Indictments Against Dr. William Miller, Accused of Killing

United Press Telegram

WATSEKA Ill, July 20—The special Grand Jury convened today to hear the evidence in the Sayler murder case. States Attorney Pallissard expects true bills returned before night against Dr William Miller now under arrest charged with murdering John B Sayler, the Crescent City banker, and Mrs Sayler and Joseph Grunden, her father now held as witnesses

While the Prosecuting Attorney will not divulge the names of his witnesses it is believed only one new witness will be called and he will testify to the contents of private papers found in Sayler's vault after the tragedy.

SALE OF HOTEL IS FOUGHT HARD.

Arguments Heard in Effort to Set Aside Transfer of Fairchance One.

ROAD SUPERVISORS ARRESTED

Brownsville Township Officials Are Charged With Misconduct in Office Amended Bill in Coal Suit Filed By Mrs Elizabeth S Moore

UNIONTOWN July 20—Arguments were made in court this morning to have the sale of the Fairchance Hotel set aside because of the insufficient price secured The attorneys for both sides present long and able pleas in behalf of their clients For the petitioners Attorney D Dale Field argued that the creditors of the former owner of the hotel did not get a fair deal and intimated fraud on the part of the purchasers When fraud was mentioned Attorney D W McDonald denied emphatically that there was any such proceeding He said the sale of the hotel was advertised in the proper manner, that it was conducted in the court house, before a large crowd of bidders and was given to the highest bidder Dr M B Shupe of Connellsville

In Field's argument it was stated that Dr Shupe and his friends had claims amounting to $16 000 or $17, 000 against the house, and got the property for a song

The hotel was purchased by Dr Shupe, who immediately sold it to Harry Marietta of Connellsville Mr McDonald argued that since the license had been revoked it was not worth more than $21 000 the price Dr Shupe paid for it.

Mrs Elizabeth S Moore of Greensburg this morning filed an amended answer to the injunction suit of the Naomi Coal Company which seeks to restrain her from revoking their lease to the Naomi mine. Mrs Moore contends that through improper mining methods exercised by the Naomi Coal Company, 300 000 tons of coal were lost involving a loss to her of $75 000

W C Barrett, Frank Long and J Frank Wright road supervisors of Brownsville township have been arrested and gave bail for court to answer charges of misconduct in office preferred by Solomon Meese and John McClure Jr The prosecutors claim the road supervisors collected the 1909 road tax all in cash, whereas they should have allowed some of it to have been worked off They further allege the supervisors appointed themselves road masters while they held the position of road supervisors and paid themselves the road masters salary

The court this morning ordered the election of a bridge over Galley run in Upper Tyrone township. The proposed bridge met with the approval of the last Grand Jury and the County Commissioners

A new trial was refused in the suit of R W Singer, manager of the Colonial theatre in Connellsville against George H Brennan, manager of The Clansman company Brennan appealed from the judgment of $189 awarded Singer on the grounds that it would be impossible to estimate the profits on an attraction The court disagreed and the verdict stands Brennan contracted to show The Clansman in the Colonial theatre but switched it to the Soisson, an opposition house

A divorce was granted Daisy O Hoke of Saltlick township from her husband, James W Hoke on the grounds of desertion Attorney John Duggan Jr, was named master in the divorce suit of Jennie McIntosh against John McIntosh In the suit for divorce of Hampton Miller against Henrietta Miller Attorney D E Bane was named master.

Arguments were heard this morning in the injunction proceedings instituted by the Uniontown, Brownsville & West Side Railway Company against the Borough of South Brownsville to restrain the borough from tearing up the tracks of the company on Water street The borough claims two reasons for its actions first, that the company never had a right to lay the tracks in the first place and second that if it ever did have such a right it has been forfeited by the expiration of the franchise

Harry Brown was given three months in the workhouse for larceny This is his third workhouse sentence and he was warned that under a new law upon his next offense he can be sent to the penitentiary for 30 years He was warned against returning to this county

Walter Sanders, convicted for being a nuisance, was sent to the workhouse for six months Samuel Bell a colored boy, was sent to jail for 30 days but said such mean things about Sheriff Johns and the county officials in general that this was increased to six months John Godolia goes to jail for 30 days for dodging a board bill

HARD DAY ON WITNESS ADAMS.

He Is Severely Cross Questioned in Sutton Murder Inquiry.

HIS TESTIMONY CONFLICTING

This He Blames on Failing Memory and Sweat Stands Out on Forehead When He Met Cold Gaze of Dead Man's Sister.

United Press Telegram

ANNAPOLIS Md July 20—Lieutenant Robert E Adams one of the chief actors in the tragedy that ended in the death of Lieutenant James N Sutton nearly two years ago in the grounds of the Naval Academy, faced a severe cross examination when the inquiry resumed its sessions this morning

But, more than the searching questions of Attorney Davis he dreaded the fixed gaze of Mrs Rose Parker sister of the dead officer frequently faltering and hesitating over the answers while beads of perspiration stood out on his forehead

Adjournment came yesterday just as the lawyer for the Sutton family started to questioning Adams about the last time he and Mrs Parker met each other Adams had suddenly admitted that he had no explanation other than a failure of his memory for the numerous discrepancies between the testimony he had just given and the story related before the Board of Inquest the day after the shooting

Did you have an interview with Mrs Parker in a hotel shortly after the shooting" asked Davis

'Yes she had asked me to come to her room said Adams in anger and she told me to tell everything, not to spare her feelings"

Adams repeated how he told the dead man's sister that he hated her brother 'but he had ground Sutton's face into the earth and how Mrs Parker had exclaimed My God how I wish I were a man"

GOT NEW ENGINE.

Ten Wheeler Arrives For Indian Creek Valley Road.

A new engine went into service on the Indian Creek Valley railroad this week It is a ten wheeler and was to have arrived several months ago but it only came in last Saturday The engine is numbered One and has been hauling the limited on the line as well as the freight trains

The company has had in service a second hand engine that was picked up when the road was opened in order to help out It will however, not be abandoned as the business of the road has increased to such an extent that both engines can be used

MASONTOWN BUSINESS BLOCK SWEPT BY FIRE; LOSS $200,000.

Fire Originated at Early Hour This Morning in Miller's Store and Spread Rapidly.

STRIKE MAY END

Conciliatory Spirit Being Shown on Both Sides at Butler

BUTLER Pa, July 20—(Special) Despite the olive branch extended by Manager Altman this morning to the effect that the doors of the Standard Steel Car plant and the subsidiaries were open for the strikers if they cared to enter the plants continue idle

None of the foreigners left their homes this morning while about 50 Americans entered the works Despite this however it is not unlikely that by late this afternoon the strike will be declared off as a conciliatory spirit is being manifested on both sides

GREENE'S CATTLE.

Makes a Big Shipment, Probably the Largest in Her History

WAYNESBURG July 20—Probably the largest train of live stock ever shipped out of Greene county over the Waynesburg and Washington railroad left Waynesburg yesterday morning The train was made up of nine cars of fat cattle and six cars of sheep All were shipped to the Pittsburg markets The cattle were owned by J T Tilton Samuel Watson, Carl Bolby and Harvey Burnard the sheep were owned by W L Conwell, J F Tilton and Samuel Watson Although quite a large train of live stock yet they were landed in Washington in good condition and were transferred to other cars and sent into the city

Many car loads of fat cattle have been shipped from Greene county to the city markets within the past few weeks The high price for all kinds of live stock is bringing a large bunch of money into the community

The greater portion of the county is well adapated for grazing and many of the farmers are turning their attention to this industry

WEST SIDER GETS EXTREME PENALTY

Kenneth Miller Started Out for Trouble and Found Plenty Of It

Kenneth Miller of the West Side was looking for trouble yesterday and found great gobs of it, as his sentence before Burgess Evans this morning would testify He was given the most severe penalty meted a prisoner since Burgess Evans assumed office On three counts drunkenness disorderly conduct and fighting he was fined $5 on each with the alternative of 72 hours At the expiration of the first sentence the second begins and the third comes when the second ends This means that for three periods of three days each Miller will board with the borough

According to Chief of Police Rottler Miller started an argument with Wire Chief Robert Cooper of the Bell Telephone Company Cooper requested Chief Rottler to have Miller move on, which was complied with No sooner, however, had the Chief gone out of sight than Miller returned He followed Cooper up Orchard alley to the wareroom where Cooper has charge While Miller is alleged to have engaged in a tussle with Cooper, the police arrived

Miller declared Cooper invited him up the alley to fight it out but this was denied by the witness

ALTMAN HOTEL IS GUTTED

First National Bank, Kail's Foreign Exchange and Several Business Houses Are Wiped Out—Means to Fight Flames Inadequate.

Seven buildings burned to the ground entailing a loss of $200 000 or more is the result of a disastrous conflagration which swept the business section of Masontown this morning. The blaze originated in the Miller building shortly after 2 o'clock and spread rapidly along the entire block. Those who sustained losses are

Hotel Altman
Miller Clothing Store
Maddas Building
Anderson Building
L A Kail's Bank
Antonio Maglizzi's Barber Shop
G N Galley's Undertaking Establishment
First National Bank
S S Hawkins Photograph Gallery
Tri State Telephone Exchange
J A Sterling Building

In the First National Bank and foreign exchange of L A Kail the money and papers were locked up in the fire proof safes and are believed to remain intact Until these big steel vaults cool off it will be impossible to open them They are buried in the smouldering embers and it may be days before the safes are sufficiently cool to be opened

Antonio Maglizzi had one of the finest barber shops in Western Pennsylvania Antonio formerly worked for Frank Butano in the Smith House, Connellsville but moved to Masontown a short time ago and opened a fine establishment

There was no means of fighting the fire The water supply of Masontown is from wells and there was not sufficient pressure to do efficient service There was also a lack of organization No one appeared to take charge of the work of fighting the flames When it was seen the fire was hopelessly beyond control efforts were made to dynamite buildings in the path of the flames in order to save the balance of the town, but even this work was futile Instead of going several buildings away from the flames, the men blew up the buildings which were just being ignited and this only added fuel to the fire

From the Altman hotel the fire spread to the foreign bank of L A Kail, then to Anderson's clothing store and Galley's undertaking establishment A slight wind fanned the blaze until the building occupied by the Tri State telephone exchange caught fire It was destroyed too and then the barber shop adjoining went. Sterling's department store was next to the last building to burn, the final sweep of the flames taking in the First National Bank building

All of the buildings destroyed were of frame save the Altman hotel and the First National Bank The walls of the Altman toppled and dropped with a terrific report, as if by an explosion but the walls of the bank building remained solid This in all probability saved the rest of the town

The block was on Main street and contained the leading stores and business interests of the town. It was on the progressive side of Main street There was no chance to save the block after the fire had gone beyond control The flames burned everything in their path until nothing remained.

The fire broke out shortly after 2 o'clock this morning and it was nearly noon before all danger of a general conflagration was averted Shortly after three o'clock a special car left Uniontown with linemen who promptly removed the wires in order to give the fire fighters a clear field The efforts of the firemen, however, were futile

Appeals for aid were sent to the Uniontown fire department but Chief Wood decided his men could give no aid There was no water supply so the firemen would have been of no particular service

Charles Ritchey, a brother of Orville and Bert Ritchey of Connellsville had recently moved to Masontown and were opening a new restaurant He and his family narrowly escaped death in the flames and saved practically nothing They occupied rooms in the Madison building, which was destroyed Miller's clothing store was located in this building

Of the estimated loss, which ranges from $200,000 up it is said that the insurance will run from $75,000 to $100,000 R B Hayes, proprietor of the Hotel Altman, was a heavy loser He paid $0 000 for the hotel not many months ago He had $40 000 insurance on the property and let a policy for $20,000 expire last week because of the excessive premiums charged. It is said he had a deal well under way for the sale of the hotel.

BIG CLAY VEIN AT SCOTTDALE.

Is Discovered on Jesse A. Stauffer's Place on the Hill.

Well Known Coal Broker Finds Valuable Deposits in Tract He Recently Offered To Scottdale Borough For Garbage Furnace Site.

SCOTTDALE, July 20.—When Scottdale Borough in the vain endeavor so far in finding a solution of where to locate the garbage furnace failed to take into consideration the offer which Jesse A. Stauffer made of the plot of seven acres standing on the top of the hill over from the furnace, they let pass an opportunity apparently for acquiring a property that would have likely proven a steady money maker, as well as a site for a garbage furnace, far removed from any possibility of creating any real or imaginary annoyance by its presence Neither they nor Mr. Stauffer saw these possibilities at the time, or the one would not have likely offered the land, and if he had the other would have probably accepted Mr Stauffer is a well known coal broker living here

As is now said the property has shown since the time it was offered to be the location of a particularly fine vein of clay, with consequent large possibilities of income to its owner. It is said that prospecting has revealed the presence of a vein of clay, about six feet in thickness, that is unapproachable for use in the United States Iron Pipe & Foundrey Company's pipe mills at this place. The clay has been mined and tested At the pipe mill and is said to prove to be perfect for the purpose of making cores, for the pipe moulding, and that a de'y consumption will be made of it that will prove a bonanza to its owner

Heretofore, clay has been brought in from a distance and at considerably more expense than will be necessary to bring it down from the hill a few hundred yards and deposit it on the pipe mill yards.

COURT ROUTINE.

Charter Papers Filed and Suit For Slander Entered.

UNIONTOWN, July 20—With the Governor's approval noted thereon the application of the Monongahela Stone, Clay & Brick Company, for a charter, has been left at the court house for record.

In the statement of its incorporators, it is set forth that the proposed corporation is to exist perpetually The place of business is Monongahela City, Washington county; but the plant is located out in North Union township, Fayette county, where a trolley system of tram cars has been established.

The purpose of the company is to dig clay, quarry stone, manufacture bricks and sell and market these products.

Some more slandering has been done if the statement in a suit for this offense be true, filed by Elizabeth Mulonka, of Mount Braddock against George Noshega She alleges that on July 11, he got the tongue of gossip and finger of scorn going in her direction by assertions, the truth of which she questions. Noshega is alleged to have said that he boarded at her house for three days and that she had not comported herself with propriety becoming a married woman The slander occurred in the tongue of Magyars, but it has an English significance that shows on her part an inconsistency that was rapidly assuming the proportions of a bad habit Noshega says he was the man in the case, according to her claim She considers her good name and feelings damaged to the extent of $2,000 and expects to show the jury that she so suffered

FELDSTEIN'S FELDSTEIN'S

Sale of Linen Suits

What Kind Are They?

Why they are Feldstein's. It is indeed remarkable how much magic there is, at times, contained in one single word.

"Feldstein's" is a word which when applied to ladies' suits, tells more than ever so many columns of detailed descriptions could convey, in fact, in Connellsville, Feldstein's is but another name for Fashion. Of course, our linen suits have done their share in securing us this most enviable reputation. And it is just these stylish, highly fashionable linen garmnets that we are now closing out at such enormous reductions.

They are this season's goods—and since next season's styles are in every way identical to this season's (an inspection of our new fall line will show this) you have now the rare and excellent opportunity to acquire for a small sum your next summer's suit. We know that we ought not to sacrifice so much on these suits, however, the need of room for our new fall arrivals and our unbreakable and inflexible rule, not to carry over anything under any circumstances, have combined in dictating such unusual reductions as we are offering below.

TUB SUITS.

Tub Suits of imported pure linen crash, in white or natural linen; light, cool and extremely serviceable; jackets are semi-fitted and are from 38 to 42 inches long. In this line you will find four different models; skirts are eleven gore, trimmed in black jet buttons; regular value up to $15.00, special for this week, your choice $9.90

FANCY LACE SUITS.

Robespierre models—stunning creations, distinctly Parisian in style and exquisite in workmanship. It is made of heavily braided net, outlined by bands of linen, skirts made in eleven gore flared and full width. A charming suit, dainty, yet substantial and serviceable, colors are blue, white, pink, champaign, special for this week $6.90

Waist of good quality lawn in white only; a very dressy waist with a yoke which consists of panels of Swiss embroidery, tucked lawn and val lace insertion; back is also tucked and trimmed, special for this sale 98c

TUESDAY EVENING, JULY 20, 1909.

A GREATER POSTOFFICE FOR GREATER CONNELLSVILLE.

Congressman Cooper has been filling in some of his spare time between Tariff acts at Washington in trying to secure a bigger postoffice for Greater Connellsville than the building planned for the lesser town.

Our new federal building seems to be a long time coming, but we will hope for that reward which patient merit should take, and which faithful representation at the seat of government is endeavoring to secure.

The suggestion of Congressman Cooper that Greater Connellsville should have a greater postoffice building is just and reasonable, and has been taken under advisement by the government officials having such matters in charge. It will probably be reported on favorably, since it is always the policy of the government to build for the future as well as for the present.

If the decision should be in favor of a larger building, it may be necessary to get an additional appropriation, but it is easier to get additional appropriations than it is to get initial appropriations.

THE COUNTY PAYS THE COST OF MOB RULE.

An alleged attorney advances the curious proposition that Allegheny county will not be liable for any damages the Schoenville strikers may inflict, because the Pressed Steel Car Company has refused a proposition on the part of a disinterested public to arbitrate the matters in dispute.

Without attempting to excuse the managers of the company for their refusal to arbitrate and without attempting in any manner to pass upon the merits of the controversy, we say that this legal deliverance is the worst kind of bad law.

The right of private contract is guaranteed by the Constitution.

Arbitration is a reasonable and proper manner of settling all manner of disputes, but its foundation principle is amicable agreement. There should be no compulsion about it. Arbitration should not be arbitrary.

The pressed steel car plant's management cannot be compelled to arbitrate anything, and their refusal to do so does not excuse the county of Allegheny from its lawful duty in the matter of protecting property rights from mob violence, any obiter dictum to the contrary notwithstanding.

Citizens and corporations are taxed for the support of government, and government on its part undertakes the duty of protecting the person and property of the citizen from unlawful attack, assault, despoliation, destruction.

When government fails in this duty it is not only equitably but lawfully responsible to the citizen for any injuries or damages he may sustain by reason of its breach of contract, and all the sophistries of demagogic lawyers cannot relieve it from its just responsibility.

The county pays the costs.

THE BEESONTOWN TANNING INDUSTRY.

The Uniontown editors are engaged in the strenuous task of tanning each other's hides. Tanning hides was the chief occupation of the original Beesontowners, but they tanned the hides of cattle. The Beesontown editors are calling each other worse names than cattle, but the public is not disposed to believe them as bad as they are being painted.

The recriminations of the editors are funny as well as furious. Editor O'Donnell says Editor Cooke sojourns in Uniontown and votes in Morgantown, and Editor Cooke says O'Donnell lives in Pittsburg and votes illegally in Uniontown; The Herald says The Standard is edited by a Democrat, and the Standard says The Herald is posing as a Republican newspaper and supporting the Democratic ticket; both papers seem to be losing sight of public matters in a personal quarrel.

A modern newspaper is judged by its utterances and not by the individual acts of its editors, publishers, reporters, printers or devils; and it is judged by its present utterances, not its past attitudes and deliverances, for the obvious reason that wise men change their minds about the wisdom of public policies, while fools never do.

The Beesontown editors are not on the ticket this year.

THE MASONTOWN FIRE AND ITS LESSON.

Masontown's disastrous fire is a stern lesson to that unprogressive community.

Though but a very short distance from the Monongahela river, the fatuous citizens of the Walled City of the Klondyke have refused to provide themselves with modern fire protection. The wells and cisterns of the village had been good enough protection for Masontown in the days of their forefathers, and they were good enough now, said the inhabitants with a faith and a simplicity deserving of a better subject.

Masontown has been a walled city. It has been walled about with prejudice against the establishment of any new order of things; it has been walled in against progress; it has shut its gates against growth; it has closed its doors against advancement.

It is time to tear down the walls, to unbar the gates, to unlock the doors.

"Stop, look and listen!" is the law of the road as well as the railroad, and until it is modified or changed the people who ride in chaises will be safer to bear it well in mind when they approach a railway crossing.

The Greensburg coal basin is too limited for the ambitions of Greensburg operators.

The warm welcome extended to the Connellsville missionary who returned from frozen Alaska for a visit was doubtless doubly welcome.

The Lottery Ticket continues to advertise its elusive and irresponsible character.

The Connellsville printers have ambitions to pose in the white light of publicity as players of professional baseball. It's a wise cobbler who sticks to his last and a sensible printer who sticks to his stick. It's all right to bat, but to become batty is foolish.

The Gallant Tenth does well to keep green the memory of the Gallant Colonel.

The Postoffice Department has climbed worse hills than that of New Haven.

Connellsville is becoming a model town for good order; and it has a strike on hand, too.

"Would it be best for the farmer to fill our local offices?" was a query discussed at the Farmers' Club of Fayette county. It is needless to say that the motion was unanimously carried.

The Sunday storm passed Connellsville by, but there are some things we do not complain about.

Peek-a-boo attire has been given the cold deal during the past couple of days.

The sheath gown bathing dress goes at Atlantic City, but almost anything goes down there.

It's all right for the lock-up to be sanitary, but the public goal should not be all-gay. It is not intended as a pleasure resort, but as a place of punishment.

The Lottery Ticket will perhaps jump from the first to the seventh age of man in its next game of chance.

The art of aviation has developed some Darius Greens.

Down in Mississippi even the ramshackly cow holds a cracking relation to the ready revolver.

The Spanish Pretender is dead and his pretension has apparently died with him.

Uncle Johnny Kern of Indiana has hit the limelight for a momentary monologue, but he will not be able to keep up the pace of the Peerless and Partinacious One.

Colonel George Franklin Huff seems to have filled in the time between Tariff legislation by consummating an international coal deal.

West Virginia justice is tempered with mercy, illuminated with wisdom and adorned with wit.

The wisdom of the Open Light and the Open Door remain to be established in modern coal mining operations.

The Lottery Ticket has reached the desperate stage of playing it low-down on the innocent babies.

The inventor who devises a machine that will run on the ground, fly in the air and swim on the water will have all the other mechanicians skinned to a frazzle in every different way.

Editors John O'Shaughnessy O'Donnell and William Henry Harrison Cooke are fighting to the death and one or the other may get hurt.

The Uniontown editors are writing saucy letters to themselves.

The Lottery Ticket got so excited on Saturday that one page stood on its head.

Having created all the Trusts New Jersey now calls on the Government to shear them of their powers.

Greene county still raises cattle, in spite of the passing of the Farmers & Drovers.

Pennsylvania's Senators are still on the Tariff job, and Pennsylvania interests have abundant reason to congratulate themselves on the fact that they have efficient representatives at Washington.

The Police Committee is policing the police.

The dangerous blown-out shot should be cut out as far as possible.

Waynesburg's trolley is actually getting a move on. Some of the Fayette county newspapers may have to apologize to the promoter yet.

THE SILLY SEASON.

Now comes the time of summer when we will believe any fool thing.

Wanted to Compromise.

In the beginning of the Civil War, Congress adjourned to see the battle of Bull Run. They were not only in the way of the military manoeuvers but helped to bring on the panic of the Union soldiers.

Judge Magruffin, a member of Congress, fled over the field with his long linen duster streaming behind him; he fell into a ditch and two Union zouaves, as badly frightened as he, fell on top of him. Magruffin believing that he had been jumped on by Confederate soldiers, exclaimed: "My God, gentlemen, can't this thing be compromised?"

Must Measure the Roads.

By an Act of Assembly approved by Governor Stuart, May 31, last, the Road Supervisors in the various townships, throughout the State are required, within six months after the passage of the act, to measure all public roads in their respective townships. Such measurement shall be made either by the use of a cyclometer or otherwise as the board may direct, and the Supervisors shall report the number of miles of road in each township to the State Highway Commissioner.

REASONABLE BARGAINS.

Bargain season now and we ask you to judge of the bargains we have here to offer you. Goods that you are needing now but we want to sell them. Want all the room possible for the new fall goods that will soon be here. Want to get rid of these summer goods and have made prices that should be an inducement to you to buy now. Ask you to be the judge of these bargains and decide for yourself whether or not they are reasonable bargains. Worth buying because of the quality as well as the price.

Wash Goods 10c the Yard.

Lawns and dimities and batistes that sold for 15c the yard go on the 10c counter this week. As pretty an assortment of materials and patterns and colorings as ever we had to show at this time of the year.

Muslin Gowns at $1.

A table of these gowns out to show this week. Worth at least a half more. Made of best quality muslin. Neatly trimmed with embroidery. Full and wide, not skimped in any way, altogether the best gown bargain we have had to show for some time.

White Skirts at $1.

Made of best quality muslin, good and wide dust ruffle of cambric and trimmed with three rows of tucking and hemstitched ruffle at the bottom. On the dollar bargain table and enough for all week's selling.

The 50c Bargain Table.

Children's dresses, ladies and misses' gowns, corset covers and ladies drawers. Some of all these on the 50c table this week and at this price quality considered we don't believe you'll find better values anywhere. Care not where you go.

Children's White Dresses at Half Price.

Some of these in the windows last week, others slightly mussed in showing and for these reasons we have offered them at just half of the original prices. Sizes 2 to 6 years, and prices were from $2 to $6.

White Waists at $1.

Another lot of these white waists on the table this week at this price. Every size from 34 to 42 and every waist worth from one half more to twice this price of $1.00.

Children's Colored Dresses at ⅓ Off.

Sizes 4 to 10 years. Dresses that sold for from $2 to $6 and $8. All these reduced ⅓ in price. You'll find these shown on a table in the cloak rooom and we call special attention to the materials and styles shown.

Suits at Bargain Prices.

Still a few suits left that we want to get rid of. Maybe your size is here in color and material that you'd like. If it is you can buy it for a price that you'll consider more than reasonable. You will be surprised at what $10 to $15 will buy in this suit department just now. A whole lot more for your money than you'd expect. Come and see if this is not the case. But don't put off the coming too long.

EDWARD WERKMAN TALKS OF FAIR.

Scottdale Director Says the Youngwood Exhibit Will Be Best Ever Given.

IT IS A FARMERS' BIG SHOW

State Live Stock Sanitary Board and State College Reserve Large Space For Exhibits—West Penn Lays Sidetracks Into Fair Grounds.

SCOTTDALE, July 20.—Edward Werkman, of here, a director of the Westmoreland Agricultural Society, says that the coming county fair at Youngwood will surpass all previous ones held there, and bases his statement upon self evident facts, as presented in the annual premium list which he is giving out. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will take a prominent part in the fair this year, the exhibit given by State College last year having proven such a success, that State College has had a larger space reserved this year 15x60 feet in dimensions on which they will have a large exhibit in charge of experts from the State Agricultural Experiment farm and the State College. Besides this the State Live Stock Sanitary Board will have an exhibit taking up a space of 15x60 feet. This is the organization for the protection of cattle, horses, sheep, and other domestic animals of the State, and which has proven its value a number of times in handling outbreaks of hydrophobia and various diseases of horses and cattle, that have cost the farmers immense sums in the past. The Board will have several of the State experts present and their exhibit will be a valuable one to the community. The fair will be held at Youngwood, on September 7, 8, 9 and 10, and liberal premiums will be paid in all classes.

Mr. Werkman, who is a large market gardener and farmer, is much pleased with the prospects, the patronage of the people, and says that in his several years on the Board of Directors he has not found so bright an outlook as this year, and every year has seen increasing success to the fair, which is conducted on the principle of improving the farming interests of the county. The association invested all its earnings and several thousand dollars besides in building better housing accommodations for the exhibits, and has now over 100,000 square feet of space under roof. There is a splendid half mile track built, and a grandstand that will seat 2,000 people.

Superintendent J. W. Brown, of the West Penn Railways Company, from Connellsville, will personally have charge of the transportation arrangements at the fair grounds and it is the plan to have side tracks laid into the fair grounds, for the convenience of the patrons of the street car lines and where cars may be loaded up and run out of the grounds without crowding. Every arrangement will be made to handle the big crowd expeditiously and comfortably during the fair.

A new feature will be the fat stock show, and entries and inquiries for this department are coming in rapidly. Some of the biggest and best breeders in the country who make it a practice to take large exhibits to the principal fairs of the country will be represented at Youngwood. The poultry show and the dog shows will each be very large this year. The entire floor space of the exhibit for merchants and manufacturers has already been asked for. Some extra exhibits will have to go on the outside and be given temporary quarters.

M. P. Shoemaker, the well known agricultural expert of Greensburg, is President of the Association, and W. F. Holtzer of Greensburg, the Secretary. The premium colors will be as follows: First, red; second, blue; third, yellow, and fourth, white.

S. A. Kline, in the Baughman building, opposite the court house, Greensburg, will open the entry books from August 30 to 4 P. M. September 4. Entries may be mailed from distant parts of the county.

PRAISE FOR PENROSE.

Congressmen Enthusiastic Over the Senator's Successful Work.

STATE'S INTERESTS GUARDED

Interesting Exposition by President Taft of His Tariff Views Shows That He Is in Perfect Accord With the Republican Party Platform.

There is every reason to believe that the Tariff bill the conference committee will eventually report to the House and Senate will contain no drastic reductions in the schedules with which Pennsylvania industries are directly concerned. The committee in reaching an agreement upon nearly all of the new rates that affect the industrial interests of the Keystone State has, it is true, made changes here and there, but in the main it has accepted most of the amendments adopted by the Senate at the instance of Senators Penrose and Oliver. These amendments provide substantial increases in the iron and steel, chemical, cotton and other schedules of vital importance to the labor and capital of Pennsylvania.

That these increases are likely to remain in the bill is due to the fact that Senator Penrose as a member of the conference committee successfully defended them when they were attacked by conferees who insisted upon lower rates. Members of the Pennsylvania Congressional delegation are highly gratified over the outlook. They had feared that in the struggle of the House conferees for the adoption of the House rates some of the Pennsylvania industries might be sacrificed. They all join in enthusiastically praising Senator Penrose for the fight he has made in behalf of the interests of this Commonwealth.

It is likely that the conference committee would have reported back the Tariff bill by this time had it not been for five propositions which have acted as stumbling blocks to an agreement—iron ore, coal, hides, oil and lumber—and upon which the President has been represented as standing firm for radical reductions or even an abolition of the tariff. Regarding the placing of raw materials upon the free list, the President on July 16, following a conference with over a score of Congressmen, issued a statement a careful reading of which shows a door left open to the conferees to enable them to fix any reasonable schedules they please as long as the new rates represent lower duties than are carried in the Dingley bill. As far as raw materials are concerned, it is evident that the President will not insist upon a free list, but will accept a modification of the Senate rates, which is probably all that that body hoped to secure in the face of the directly opposite stand taken by the House on several of the more important items.

President Taft's exposition of his tariff views does not differ in any essential from the creed of the most straight-laced protectionists. He stands squarely on the tariff plank of last year—as strong a statement of protection as any that was ever written. It declares for protection wherever protection is needed and so does the President. Mr. Taft is not in favor of levying duties protective in their character where protection is not needed, in which position he also stands with his party. He does not contend that competition in the shelter of protection unfailingly reduces cost of production, rendering tariff rates in all cases unnecessarily high, but admits exceptions to that the same as to all other rules. He takes reasonable ground as a reasonable man. He does not hold that all rates ought to be reduced, but only such as have become excessive, and he states that some ought to be increased because changing conditions have rendered them non-protective.

To the Republican members of Congress who visited him to ask that he use his influence to have raw material such as hides, coal and petroleum kept on the dutiable list the President, after repeating the Republican tariff plank, said that he "had always understood that it meant a downward revision in many instances, though perhaps in some few instances an increase might be needed." As to whether either of the commodities which had been brought to his attention needed protection, was, he said, "a question of fact which he hoped to make up his mind with respect to on such evidence as was available to him, in order to carry out what he understood to be the promises of the party to the whole people." Also, he said that the question in each case was a question of fact to be determined by evidence as to whether the present duty was needed for protection or whether the rate was excessive.

Unreasoning and unreasonable advocates of downward revision on everything may find comfort in President Taft's statement that "he was committed to a downward revision of the tariff." But he is not for "downward revision" with closed eyes. He makes it clear that revision should be with regard for full protection. He is no advocate of a mere tariff for revenue. He is as strongly determined upon preservation of American standards as the Republican tariff [illegible] [illegible] he carefully points out, he [illegible] [illegible] to quit from the Republican tariff plank to show upon what lines the elected delegates of the rank and file of Republicanism believed revision should be carried out, the same being a guide for Congressional action.

"In all tariff legislation the true principle of protection is best maintained by the imposition of such duties as will equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, together with a reasonable profit to American industries. * * * the aim and purpose of the Republican party being not only to preserve, without excessive duties, that security against foreign competition to which American manufacturers, farmers and producers are entitled, but also to maintain the high standard of living of the wage earners of this country who are the most direct beneficiaries of the protective system."

ELLA GINGLES CLEARED.

Women Cheer When the Verdict Is Announced.

Chicago, July 20.—Ella Gingles was cleared last night of the charge of stealing lace from Miss Agnes Barrette, her former employer, but the story she told on the witness stand to the effect that an attempt was made to force her into white slavery was denounced as untrue by the jury that freed her.

The verdict was as follows: "We, the jury, find the defendant not guilty and we, the jury, further find that the charges made against Miss Agnes Barrette were unfounded and are untrue."

The courtroom was nearly vacant when the jury came in. A few of the women who stood by the Irish girl after her story became public were there. They rose and screamed and clapped their hands when the words "not guilty" were read and it was some time before they realized the import of the last half of the verdict.

ELECT OFFICERS EARLY.

Democratic Congressional Committee Takes Quick Action.

Washington, July 20—Taking advantage of the present situation developed by the tariff the Democratic congressional committee, one year in advance of the usual time for such action, met last night, elected officers and mapped out the course it will follow in its fight to capture the house in the next congressional elections.

Representative James F. Boyd of Missouri was re-elected chairman by the unanimous vote of the thirty-seven members of the committee. The other officers chosen were: Representative Lincoln Dixon of Indiana, secretary; Representative David E. Finley, South Carolina, first vice chairman; Representative A. Mitchell Palmer, Pennsylvania, second vice chairman, and J. J. Sinnott of Virginia, sergeant-at-arms.

TRUST REGULATION.

Uncle Sam Should Control, Says New Jersey's Governor.

New York, July 20.—A plea for government regulation of interstate corporations was the main subject of a speech delivered by Governor J. Franklin Fort of New Jersey at the exercises in Jersey City celebrating the opening of the two new McAdoo tunnels under the Hudson.

"The interstate character of the business of corporations," said Governor Fort, "necessitates some sort of regulation which is more than statewide. The nation alone can provide uniform regulation through all the states. All interstate business must be subject to governmental inspection and under its regulation. No creature must be allowed to be greater than its creator nor to do anything without his consent."

SAVED HUSBAND.

From Drowning When Automobile Jumps Embankment Into River.

Zanesville, O., July 20.—Mrs. N. C. Draper, wife of the superintendent of the Zanesville street railway system, saved the life of her husband after both had been thrown into the Muskingum river when their automobile plunged over an eighteen-foot embankment.

The machine turned a complete somersault and landed on its wheels. Mr. Draper was pinioned under the automobile and would have probably drowned had not Mrs. Draper held his head above the water and helped him to extricate himself.

Mrs. Draper was injured internally and both are under the care of physicians.

WISHES TO DIE IN AMERICA

Aged Man Punctures Heart With Shears Rather Than Return to Italy.

Philadelphia, July 20.—Despondent because his relatives had declared it as their intention to send him back to Italy and asserting that when he dies he wants to die in free America Nickola Narola ninety-two years old of this city, attempted suicide by stabbing himself four times in the heart with a pair of tailors' shears.

He was hurried to a hospital where it was said that the heart was punctured, and the physicians decided to operate immediately as being the only chance to save the life of the aged man. It is not considered likely that he will survive the shock.

Situation Unchanged at Morgantown.

Morgantown, W. Va., July 20.—During the past twenty-four hours there has been no change in the labor situation as regards the operation of the Morgantown plant of the American Sheet and Tinplate company.

LEAVE ALL TO THE CONFEREES.

Congress Leaders Say They Must Frame Tariff Programs.

HARD FIGHT IS EXPECTED

Daring Aviator Descends In His Monoplane When About Eight Miles Off French Coast—Torpedo Boat Rescues Him.

Washington, July 20.—All of the Republican members of the tariff conference have been invited by President Taft to take dinner with him tonight at the White House. The invitations did not say whether there was any purpose in the gathering other than sociability, but it is assumed that he expects to be ready to report progress in getting votes for the abolition or reduction of duties on raw materials.

Speaker Cannon has said that the conferees must frame the programs for passing the conference report through the house and the senate and that the reports of the two branches would have to assume the responsibility for their actions.

No Easy Task For Senate Leaders.

Senator Aldrich is considering the possibility of putting through the senate a conference report providing for free iron ore and free oil and reduced duties on coal, lumber and hides. If the mutterings of dissatisfaction heard about the senate offices may be taken as a criterion the senate leaders are confronted with no easy task. Strangely enough many of the protests against the free raw material program are coming from the progressive Republican faction which fought hardest for downward revision. Many of the progressives come from states interested in cattle raising and they are opposed to free hides or even to a reduction in the duty.

Senator Borah stated that if the free raw material program was adopted some of the western senators would be afraid to go home and could not expect to continue representing their states in Washington.

Persistent Rumor Circulates.

Circulating about the capitol was a persistent rumor that the president would not be satisfied with free iron ore and oil and reduced duties on coal, hides and lumber. Many senators appeared to believe this report and expressed the opinion that he would insist upon hides and coal being placed upon the free list. Senators who visited the White House did not confirm the report upon their return to the capitol, but at the same time they were unable to contradict it.

Among the older members of the senate and house who have had long experience in harmonizing differences between the two branches of congress or between congress and the executive, it was predicted that the president would demand every concession possible to obtain without endangering the adoption of the report. These conservative members asserted that the president realizes now how different it would be to get an agreement in the senate if all the principal raw materials are made free.

When the conferees meet at the White House tonight it is probable that the president will be informed just what concessions can be made without jeopardizing the passage of the conference report.

CEASE TO BE MASTER

Shoe Manufacturers Say Labor Organizations Now Dominate.

Lynn, Mass., July 20.—A thinly veiled threat to deprive the city of Lynn of its chief industry, that of shoe manufacturing, is made in a statement issued from the office of the Lynn Shoe Manufacturers' association.

The statement characterizes the alleged domination of the shoe industry by the labor organizations as "undue interference," and says the Lynn shoe manufacturer has ceased to be master of his establishment. After declaring that labor conditions are increasing the cost of production the statement continues:

"It is hardly to be expected that Lynn shoe manufacturers will stay in Lynn and invest their money in shoe manufacturing when they cannot see anything but failure before them."

DEPOSITORS GIVE CHASE

After Exciting Run They Capture Man Who Had Taken Woman's Money.

New York, July 20.—Clerks and waiting depositors in the Dry Dock saving bank joined in a chase which resulted in the capture of Aaron Volberg, who was accused by an intending depositor of snatching her satchel in which she had brought $830 to the institution.

Struggling to the utmost Volberg was dragged back to the bank, where another fierce contest followed between him and his captors when he overheard a clerk at a telephone summoning the police. Volberg was held on charges of assault and robbery.

Calhoun's Second Trial Begun.

San Francisco, July 20.—Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railroads, is again on trial on a charge of offering a bribe to a supervisor to gain a privilege for his corporation.

LION AND TIGER BATTLE

Spectators at Animal Show Treated to Act Not on Program.

New York, July 20.—Fifteen hundred persons in a trained animal show at Coney Island witnessed a battle between a lion and a tiger in a large performing cage, and as a result of the thrilling encounter the lion will probably have to be killed.

The two animals took part in the same act and between them there had been bad blood for a long time. It was only when the hind legs of the lion had been rendered useless by the tiger biting the small of his back that the brutes were separated.

Wring Confession From Negro.

Paris, Tenn., July 20.—Hanging Frank Duncan, a negro, to a tree until blood ran from his lips, a posse in pursuit of Albert Lawson, a negro, who fatally shot Sheriff Compton, forced Duncan to confess that he and his two brothers had sheltered Lawson and aided him to escape by smearing a mixture of cayenne pepper and onions on his feet to throw the bloodhounds off the track.

Miss Wanamaker Is Engaged.

Philadelphia, July 20.—The engagement has been announced of Miss Fernanda Wanamaker, granddaughter of John Wanamaker, to Artruro Heeren, son of Count Heeren of Paris and Biarritz. M. Heeren is a member of an old French family.

CHAPTER XXV.

THE TRIAL OF VON BLITZ.

THE next morning found the weather unsettled. There had been a fierce storm during the night, and a misty mist was blowing up from the sea. Deppingham kept to his room, although his cold was dissipated.

Chase had been up nearly all of the night, fearful lest the islanders should seize the opportunity to scale the walls under cover of the tempest. All through the night he had been possessed of a spirit of wild bravado, a glorious exaltation. He was keeping watch over her, standing between her and peril, guarding her while she slept. His thoughts, however, did not contemplate the princess fair in a state of wretched insomnia, with himself as the disturbing element.

He looked for her at breakfast time. They usually had their rolls and coffee together. When she did not appear he made more than one pretext to lengthen his own stay in the breakfast room. "She's trying to forget yesterday," he reflected.

Selim came to him in the midst of his reflections, bearing a thick, rain soaked envelope.

"It was found, excellency, inside the southern gate, and it is meant for you," said Selim. Chase gingerly slashed open the envelope with his fruit knife. He laughed ruefully as he read the simple but laborious message from Jacob von Blitz:

"Where are your warships all this time? They are not coming to you ever. Goodby. You got to die yet too. Your friend, Jacob von Blitz. And my wives too."

Chase stuffed the blurred, sticky letter into his pocket and arose to stretch himself.

"There's something coming to you, Jacob," he said, much to the wonder of Selim. "Selim, unless I miss my guess pretty badly, we'll be having a message, not from Garcia, but from Rasula before long. How are my cigarettes holding out?"

"They run low, sahib. Neenah has given all of hers to me for you, excellency, and I have demanded those of the wives of Von Blitz."

"Selim, you must not forget that you are a gentleman. That was most ungallant. But I suppose you got them?"

"No, sahib. They refused to give them up. They are saving them for Mr. Britt," said Selim dejectedly.

"Ah, the ficklety of women!" he sighed. "There's a new word for you, Selim—ficklety."

It was far past midday when he heard from Rasula. He had seen the princess but once, and then she was walking briskly, wrapped in a rain coat, followed by her shivering dogs and her two Rapp-Thorberg soldiers. Somehow she failed to see Chase as he sauntered hungrily, almost imploringly, across the upper terrace, in plain view. Perhaps, after all, it was not the weather.

Rasula's messenger came to the gates and announced that he had a letter for Mr. Chase. Rasula had this to say:

We have reason to suspect that you were right in your suspicions. The golden plate has been found this day in the cave below the chateau, just as you have said. This much of what you have charged against Jacob von Blitz seems to be borne out by the evidence secured. Last night there was an attempt to rob the vaults in the company's bank. Again I followed your advice and laid a trap for the men engaged. They were slain in the struggle which followed. I have to inform you, sir, that your charge against Jacob von Blitz does not hold good in the case of the bank robbery. Therefore I am impelled to believe that you may have unjustly accused him of being implicated in the robbery of the treasure chests. He was not among the bank thieves. There were but three of them—the Boer foremen. Jacob von Blitz came up himself and joined us in the fight against the traitors. He was merciless in his anger against them. You have said that you will testify against him. Sir, I have taken it upon myself to place him under restraint notwithstanding his actions against the Boers. He shall have a fair trial. If it is proved that he is guilty, he shall pay the penalty. We are just people.

Sir, we, the people of Japat, will take you at your word. We ask you to appear against the prisoner and give evidence in support of your charge. He shall be placed on trial tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. On my honor as a man and a believer I assure safety to you while you are among us on that occasion. I, Rasula, will meet you at the gates and will conduct you back to them in safety. If you are a true man, you will not evade the call. RASULA.

"Well, it looks as though Von Blitz has spiked your guns," said Deppingham. "The dog turns against his confederates and saves his own skin by killing them."

"In any event," said Browne, "you spoiled his little game. He loses the treasure, and he didn't get into the vaults. Rasula should take those points into consideration."

"He won't forget them, rest assured. That's why I'm sure that he'll take my word at the trial as against that of Von Blitz," said Chase.

"You—you don't mean to say, Mr. Chase, that you are going into the town?" cried Lady Agnes, wide eyed.

"Certainly, Lady Deppingham. They are expecting me."

"Don't be foolhardy, Chase. They will kill you like a rat!" exclaimed Deppingham.

"Oh, no, they won't," said the other confidently. "They've given their promise through Rasula. Whatever else they may be, they hold a promise sacred. They know I'll come. If I don't they'll know that I am a coward. You wouldn't have them think I am a coward, would you, Lady Deppingham?"

The next morning he coolly set forth for the gates, scarcely thinking enough of the adventure to warrant the matter of fact goodbys that he bestowed upon those who were congregated to see him off. His heart was sore as he strode rapidly down the drive. Genevra had not come down to say farewell.

"By heaven," he muttered, strangely vexed with her, "I fancy she means it. She's bent on showing me my place. But she might have come down and wished me good luck. That was little enough for her to do. Ah, well!" he sighed, putting it away from him.

As he turned into the tree lined avenue near the gate a slender young woman in a green and white gown arose from a seat in the shade and stepped a pace forward, opening her parasol quite leisurely as he quickened his steps. Her eyes gleamed brightly, and she was breathing as one who has run swiftly.

"You are determined to go down there among those men?" she demanded, the smile suddenly giving way to a look of disapproval. She ignored his hand.

"Certainly," he said after the moment of bewilderment. "Why not? I—I thought you had made up your mind to let me go without a—a word for good luck." She found great difficulty in meeting the wistful look in his eyes. "You are good to come down here to say goodby. We're almost strangers again."

"I did not come down to say goodby," she said, her lips trembling ever so slightly.

"I don't understand," he said.

"I am going with you into the town—as a witness," she said, and her face went pale at the thought of it.

"Genevra," he cried, "you—you would do that?"

"Why not, Mr. Chase?" She tried to speak calmly, but she was trembling. After all, she was a slender, helpless girl—not an amazon! "I saw and heard everything. They won't believe you unsupported. They won't harm me. If I swear to them that what you say is true they"—

Her hand was on his arm now, trembling, eager, yet charged with fear at the prospect ahead of her. He clasped the little hand in his and quickly lifted it to his lips.

"I'm happy again!" he cried. "It's all right with me now." She withdrew her hand on the instant.

"No, no! It isn't that," she said, her eyes narrowing. "Don't misinterpret my coming here to say that I will go. It isn't because—no, it isn't that!"

"I was unhappy because you had forsaken me," he said gently. "You are brave—you are wonderful! But I can't take you down there. I know what will happen if they find him guilty. Goodby, dear one. I'll come back—surely I'll come back. Thank you for sending me away happy."

"Won't you let me go with you?" she asked after a long, penetrating look into his eyes.

"I would not take you among them for all the world. You forget. Neither of us would come back."

"Neither of us?" she said slowly.

"I wouldn't come back without you," he said quietly, earnestly. She understood. "Goodby! Don't worry about me. I am in no danger."

"Goodby," she said, the princess once more. "I shall pray for you with all my soul." She gave him her hand. It was cold and lifeless. He pressed it warmly and went quickly away, leaving her standing there in the still shade of the oathwoods, looking after him with eyes that grew wider and wider with the tears that welled up from behind.

Hours went by—slow, tortuous hours in which the souls of those who watched and waited for his return were tried to the utmost.

Once there came to the ears of the watchers on the mountain side the sound of distant shouts, later the brief rattle of firearms. The blood of every one turned cold with apprehension. Every voice was stilled, every eye wide with dread. Neenah screamed as she fled across the terrace toward the drawbridge, where Selim stood as motionless as a statue.

Luncheon time passed, and again, as if drawn by a magnet, the entire household made its way to the front of the chateau.

At last Selim uttered a shout of joy. He forgot the deference due his betters and unceremoniously dashed off toward the gates, followed by Neenah, who seemed possessed of wings.

Chase was returning!

They saw him coming up the drive, his hat in his hand, his white umbrella raised above his head. The eager, joyous watchers saw him greet Selim and his fluttering wife. They saw Selim fall upon his knees, and they felt the tears rushing to their own eyes.

"Hurray!" shouted little Mr. Saunders in his excitement. Bowles and the three clerks joined him in the exhibition. The princess was conscious of the fact that at least five or six pairs of eyes were watching her face. She closed her lips and compelled her eyelids to obey the dictates of a resentful heart. She lowered them until they gave one the impression of indolent curiosity, even indifference. All the while her incomprehensible heart was thumping with a rapture that knew no allegiance to royal conventions.

A few minutes later he was among them, listening, with his cool, half satirical smile, to their protestations of joy and relief.

"Nonsense," he said in his most deprecating voice, taking a seat beside the princess on the railing and fanning himself lazily with his hat, to the mortification of his body servant, who waved a huge palm leaf in vigorous adulation. "It was nothing. Just being a witness, that's all. You'll find how easy it is when you get back to London and have to testify in the Skaggs will contest. Tell the truth, that's all." The princess was now looking at his brown face with eyes over which she had lost control. "Oh, by the bye," he said, as if struck by a sudden thought, "it is my painful duty to announce to the Misses von Blitz that they are widows."

There was a dead silence. The three women stared up at him, uncomprehending.

"Yes," he went on solemnly. "Jacob is no more. He was found guilty by his judges and executed with commendable haste and precision. He took his medicine bravely—twelve leaden pills administered by as many skillful surgeons. But it is yet too early to congratulate yourselves on your freedom. Rasula has promised to kill all of us, whether we deserve it or not."

"They shot him?" demanded Deppingham when he had finished.

"Admirably. By Jove, those fellows can shoot! They accepted my word against his—which is most gratifying to my pride. One other man testified against him—a chap who saw him with the Boers not ten minutes before the attempt was made to rob the vaults. Rasula appeared as counsel for the defense. Merely a matter of form. He knew that he was guilty. There was no talk of a new trial, no appeal to the supreme court, Britt; no expense to the community."

He was as unconcerned about it as if discussing the most trivial happening of the day. Von Blitz lived not ten minutes after sentence was passed.

"As to their intentions toward us," said Chase, 'they are firm in their determination that no one shall leave the chateau alive. Rasula was quite frank with me. He is a cool devil. He calmly notified me that we will all be dead inside of two weeks. No ships will put in here so long as the plague exists. I asked him how we were to die, and he smiled as though he was holding something back as a surprise for us. He came as near to laughing as I've ever seen him when I asked him if he'd forgotten my worships. 'Why don't you have them here?' he asked. 'We're not ready,' said I. 'The six months are not up for nine days yet.' I also made the interesting discovery that suits have already been brought in England to break the will on the grounds of insanity."

"But what good will that do us if we are to die here?" exclaimed Bobby Browne.

"None whatsoever," said Chase calmly. "You must admit, however, that you exhibited signs of hereditary insanity by coming here in the first place. I'm beginning to believe that there's a streak of it in my family too."

"And you—you saw him killed?" asked the princess in an awed voice, low and full of horror.

"Yes. I could not avoid it."

"They killed him on your—on your"—She could not complete the sentence, but shuddered expressively.

"Yes. He deserved death, princess. I am more or less like the Moslem in one respect. I might excuse a thief or a murderer, but I have no pity for a traitor."

"You saw him killed?" she said in the same awed voice, involuntarily drawing away from him.

"Yes," he said, "and you would have seen him killed, too, if you had gone down with me to appear against him."

She looked up quickly and then thanked him almost in a whisper.

CHAPTER XXVI.

CENTURIES TO FORGET.

"MY lord," said Saunders the next day, appearing before his lordship after an agitated hour of preparation, "it's come to a point where something's got to be done." He got that far and then turned quite purple. His collar seemed to be choking him. "If what Mr. Chase says is true, we've got a precious short time to live. Well, we've—we've concluded to get all we can out of the time that's left, my lord. So I've come to ask if it will be all right with you and her ladyship, sir. We don't want to do anything that would seem forward and out of place, sir."

"It's very considerate of you, Saunders, but what the devil are you talking about?"

"Miss—Miss Pelham and I have decided to get—er—get married before it is too late."

Deppingham stared hard for a moment and then grinned broadly.

"You mean before you die?"

"That's it exactly, my lord. Haw, haw! It would be a bit late, wouldn't it, if we waited till afterward. Haw, haw! Splendid! So I have come to ask if you think it will interfere with your arrangements if—if we should be married tonight?"

"I'm sure, Saunders, that it won't discommode me in the least," said his lordship genially. 'By all means, Saunders, let it be tonight, for tomorrow we may die."

"Will you kindly speak to her ladyship, sir?"

"Gladly. And I'll take it as an honor if you will permit me to give away the bride."

"Thank you, my lord," cried Saunders, his face beaming. His lordship shook hands with him, whereupon his cup of happiness overflowed, notwithstanding the fact that his honeymoon was likely to be of scarcely any duration whatsoever.

The wedding took place that night in the little chapel. Chase deliberately took possession of the princess after the hollow wedding supper had come to an end. Her mood had changed. Now she was quite at ease with him. The taunting gleam in her eyes presaged evil moments for his peace of mind.

"I'm inspired," he said to her. "A wedding always inspires me."

"It's very strange that you've never married," she retorted. She was striding freely by his side, confident in her power to resist sentiment with mockery.

"Will you be my wife?" he asked abruptly. She caught her breath before laughing tolerantly and then looked into his eyes with a tantalizing ingenuousness.

"By no means," she responded. "I am not oppressed by the same views that actuated Miss Pelham. You see, Mr. Chase, I am quite confident that we are not to die in two weeks."

"I could almost wish that we could die in that time," he said.

"How very diabolical!"

"It may seem odd to you, but I'd rather see you dead than married to Prince Karl." She was silent. He went on, "Would you consent to be my wife if you felt in your heart that we should never leave this island?"

"I think I shall go in, Mr. Chase," she said, with a warning shake of her head.

"Don't, please! I'm not asking you to marry me if we should leave the island. You must give me credit for that," he argued whimsically.

"Ah, I see," she said, apparently very much relieved. "You want me only with the understanding that death should be quite close at hand to relieve you. And if I were to become your wife, here and now, and we should be taken from this dreadful place—what then?"

"You probably would have to go through a long and miserable career as plain Goodwife Chase," he explained.

"If it will make you any happier," she said, with a smile in which there lurked a touch of mischievous triumph, "I can say that I might consent to marry you if I were not so positive that I will leave the island soon. You seem to forget that my uncle's yacht is to call here, even though your cruisers will not."

"I'll risk even that," he maintained stoutly.

She stopped suddenly, her hand upon his arm.

"Do you really love me?" she demanded earnestly.

"With all my soul, I swear to you," he replied, staggered by the abrupt change in her manner.

"Then don't make it any harder for me," she said. "You know that I could not do what you ask. Please, please be fair with me. I—I can't even jest about it. It is too much to ask of me," she went on, with a strange firmness in her voice. "It would require centuries to make me forget that I am a princess, just as centuries were taken up in creating me what I am. I am no better than you, dear, but—but—you understand?" She said it so pleadingly, so hopelessly, that he understood what it was that she could not say to him. "We seldom, if ever, marry the men whom God has made for us to love."

He lifted her hands to his breast and held them there. "If you will just go on loving me I'll some day make you forget you're a princess." She smiled and shook her head. Her hair gleamed red and bronze in the kindly light; a soft perfume came up to his nostrils.

The Scrap Book

Its First Letter.

They were playing a game in which some one gives out the initial of some object in the room and the rest of them try to guess the object. So they tried to get the host's gray haired father into it. But he held off.

"Sure," said he. "I'm a little bad in me spelling. I'd make no hand at such a game."

"Oh, come on!" they pleaded. "You pick out some object, tell us the letter it begins with and we'll guess it."

So the old man cajoled, finally yielded. "Well," said he, "then I will. The letter is 'F.'"

They tried and tried to guess what he meant. Knowing his weakness in spelling his son picked "phonograph," thinking the old gentleman might imagine it began with an "I." But, no, he was wrong.

Finally they all had to give it up and appealed to him to tell the article. He looked wise and said: "Well, since yez all give up what the thing is that begins with an 'F,' I'll tell yez. It's the fwhatnot."

The Noble Nature.

It is not growing, like a tree
In bulk doth make man better be
Or standing long an oak three hundred year,
To fall a log at last dry, bald and sear
A lily of a day
Is fairer far in May
Although it fall and die that night
It was the plant and flower of light
In small proportions we just beauties see,
And in short measures life may perfect be.

—Ben Jonson.

A Bitter Dose.

An old negro man was riding on the train and fell asleep with mouth wide open. A mischievous drummer came along and, having a convenient capsule of quinine in his pocket, he uncorked it and sifted it well on to the old negro's palate and the root of his tongue. The old darky, awakening, became much disturbed. He called for the conductor and asked, "Boss, is dere a doctor on dis here train?"

"I don't know," said the conductor. "Are you sick?"

"Yas, sah, I sho' is sick. I sho' is sick."

"What is the matter with you?"

"I dunno, sir, but it tastes like I busted my gall."

Dusty.

Alongside the secretary of state's desk is a great globe, standing over six feet high. One day Mr. Knox consulted it to see if it were really true that the sun never sets on our dominions nowadays or to learn something else of equal importance. The Pennsylvania statesman is the pink of neatness and was somewhat irritated to find that the big revolving ball soiled his coat sleeve.

"William," he said sharply to the messenger and laying his finger on the globe "there is dust there a foot thick."

"It's thicker'n dat, Mr. Secretary," replied the negro, with that familiarity that comes of mingling with greatness. "What do you mean?" demanded the premier.

"Why, you'se got yuh fingah on de desert of Sahara."

Mr. Knox did badly at trying to suppress a smile.

"You'll find some on the Atlantic ocean, too," he remarked as he returned to his desk.

Not an Imitator.

Mrs. Jones, a fussy fidgety old lady, who was called by some folks a busybody, snapped out to her pastor as he set out for a fortnight's vacation.

"Satan never takes a vacation, Mr. Steenthly."

"Well, my dear Mrs. Jones," the minister cheerfully answered, "that is just why I am taking a vacation. I never did believe in imitating Satan."

Sufficient Unto the Day.

One summer day a colored man and his family of eight, who depended entirely on the town for their support, started away from home, all arrayed in their best, each carrying a bag of goodies. One of their benefactors met them on the road.

"Well, Uncle Sam, where are you going with all your family so dressed up?" was the inquiry.

"Why, boss," said Sam, "doan' you know the circus am come to town?"

"Yes, but I can't afford to go and take all my family."

"Well, boss, I tell you, it is jes' dis away wid us. We done sol' de heatin' stove 'cause de winter am fur off, but de circus am here!"

Your Task.

Let each one accept his task, a task which should fill his life. It may be very humble; it will not be the less useful. Never mind what it is so long as it exists and keeps you erect. When you have regulated it without excess, just the quantity you are able to accomplish each day, it will cause you to live in health and in joy.

Resourceful.

A butter and egg man was visited by a chap who bought four of his best eggs. This chap took the eggs home, put them on to boil, told his wife to take them off at the end of three minutes and then went upstairs to shave. When he came down again half an hour later the eggs were still boiling away. He removed them from the pot, put them in cold water, dried them and gave them to his little daughter.

"Take these eggs back," he said, "to the man and tell him it was ducks' eggs that we wanted. If he hasn't got ducks' eggs bring the money back."

Happiness.

If thou workest at that which is before thee, following right reason seriously vigorously, calmly, without allowing anything else to distract thee but keeping thy divine part pure if thou should be bound to give it back immediately—if thou holdest to this expecting nothing, fearing nothing, but satisfied with thy present activity according to nature and with heroic truth in every word and sound which thou utterest, thou wilt live happy. And there is no man who is able to prevent this.—Marcus Aurelius.

Turn About.

The president of a western university relates how on one occasion when a certain well known educator was dean of that institution, grave complaints against the college cook were brought to him by one of the undergraduates whereupon the dean summoned the delinquent, duly lectured him upon his shortcomings and, in short, threatened him with dismissal unless conditions were bettered.

"Good gracious, sir!" exclaimed the cook. "You oughtn't to place too much importance on what the young men tell you about my meals. Why, sir, they come to me in just the same way and complain about your lectures!"

A Genial Greeting.

A young New York broker of convivial habits fell in with an old school friend who had gone on the road.

"Whenever you're in town come up and bunk with me," he urged his friend as they separated. "No matter what old time it is. If I'm not there just go ahead and make yourself at home. I'll be sure to turn up before daybreak."

Soon after this the salesman arrived in town about midnight, and, remembering his friend's invitation, sought out his boarding house. There was only a dim light flickering in the hall, but he gave the bell a manful pull. Presently he found himself face to face with a landlady of grim and terrible aspect.

"Does Mr. Smith live here?" he faltered.

"He does," snapped the landlady. "You can bring him right in!"—Everybody's.

Man Is a Free Agent.

Man is either free or he is not free. If he is not free he cannot in cases of conflicting motives choose, but must blindly follow one of the impulses. But we know from consciousness that he can decide between conflicting motives. Therefore it is false that he is not free. He must therefore be free.—Hepburn.

The Witty Warden.

"You'd hardly expect to find a sense of humor in prison officials," says an American representative on the international prison commission, "but during an inspection made by some Americans interested in penal matters of a penitentiary in England one of us was thus surprised.

"'I presume,' observed the American, 'that here, as elsewhere, you prison officials find existence painful enough.'

"'I think you may fairly say so, sir,' responded the warden with a grim smile, 'seeing the number of felons we have on our hands.'"—Lippincott's.

One on the Man of Method.

"Don't wait for me," he said to his better half. "I may be rather late, but 'business is business,' you know and can't be helped."

The next morning the man of method was far from either looking well or feeling well. At breakfast he sat listlessly toying with his toast and coffee, while his spouse sat stonily silent behind the coffeepot. The breakfast room clock was equally silent.

"Maria, my dear, there must be something wrong with that clock. I am sure I wound it up last night," remarked the husband.

"No," answered his wife "you wound up Freddy's music box instead, and had it playing 'Home, Sweet Home,' at 3 o'clock in the morning. The hall clock has also stopped, and you have screwed your corkscrew right into the telephone."—Judge's Library.

Couldn't Fool Him.

A pompous and loud mouthed member of a certain legislature was making a speech on some momentous question and in concluding said:

"In the words of Daniel Webster, who wrote the dictionary, 'give me liberty or give me death!'"

One of his colleagues pulled at his coat and whispered:

"Daniel Webster did not write the dictionary. It was Noah."

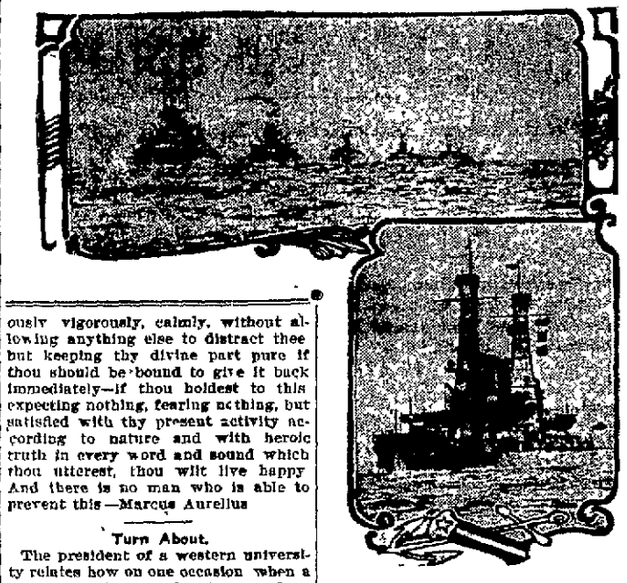

"Noah nothing," replied the speaker. "Noah built the ark."

One of Them.

"There will be a meeting of the board," said the preacher, "at the conclusion of this service." So the official brethren of the church gathered around the pastor after the benediction was pronounced. Among them was a stranger, whom it was necessary as delicately as possible to remind that his presence was not needed.

"I beg your pardon," said the stranger. "I understood this was to be a meeting of the bored, of which I claim to be one."

THE ATLANTIC BATTLESHIP FLEET EQUIPPED WITH NEW SPIRAL MASTS

The accompanying illustration contains the first snapshot photograph of the battleship squadron of the Atlantic fleet since maneuvers began off Provincetown, Mass. All of the battleships in this squadron are now equipped with the new fire control masts. These editions to the equipment of battleships are as yet an experiment and a thorough test of their usefulness is now being made. Representatives of several foreign governments are at Provincetown getting points on the work of the warships and taking particular note of the effectiveness of the new masts. Among the first foreign naval experts to arrive were the Japanese. They undoubtedly will adopt the masts if they are found to be practical.

Town Booming Helps

II.—The Head of the Table

A lot of quarrelsome Scottish chiefs used to quarrel because each wanted to sit at the head of the table. Some one hit on the plan of putting a round table in the room where they met, and each of them then imagined that he had the place of honor.

This arrangement worked splendidly until Rob Roy McGregor took a shy at it. After he had become sure of his power a banquet was being served to the chiefs at the round table.

When the servants brought in the roast McGregor shouted, "PUT IT AT THE HEAD OF THE TABLE!"

"But where is the head of the table?" asked the servant.

"THE HEAD OF THE TABLE IS WHERE THE M'GREGOR SITS."

The McGregor spirit is what this town needs. So far as we are concerned, this is the CENTER OF THE EARTH. If we're not proud of our town we should get a hustle on and make it a town to be proud of—MAKE IT THE MOST IMPORTANT PLACE ON THE MAP! Make it the chief place on the green earth in the eyes of its citizens.

The Cokers dropped two games to Fairmont yesterday, much to the disgust of Manager Alex Sweeney. The Cokers are crippled by the absence of Ike Francis, who has overstayed his leave of absence from the team. He was to have joined the team in Fairmont yesterday but failed to put in an appearance.

The first game was a pitchers' battle between Silcox and King, with honors near even. The final score was 2 to 1.

In the second game neither side made a run until the eighth inning. Then there was some weird work by the Cokers, a muffed fly by Chip Francis and fooxie by Johnny Yoedt helping things along. When the smoke of battle cleared away the Fairmont boys had piled up five runs. After Calhoun had singled Chip Francis, to make up for his previous error, laced the ball for a homer. The scores:

More Motorcycle Victims.

Berlin, July 20.—Four more persons who were severely burned as the result of a fire which followed the explosion of a motorcycle during a race at the Old Botanic gardens, died. This makes a total of eight deaths. Over twenty other spectators were severely severely injured and a dozen slightly injured.

SOCIETY CELEBRITY, KIN OF NOBILITY, HELD AS FORGER.

Mandeville de Marigny Hall, well known to the social set in New York, Newport, London and Paris, a relative of the Duke de Villahrosa and a descendant of the Marquis de Marigny, is locked in jail at Kingston, R. I., charged with passing worthless checks. The young man has figured in sensational escapades almos without number in America and Europe during the last few years. He is a graduate of Yale, and his father is a wealthy New York manufacturer, the family being one of the best known in the metropolis. Last year he was sentenced to prison in France for a check swindle, and since his return to America the police say he has lavished large sums of money on actresses, giving worthless checks to obtain the money. He was arrested at Narragansett Pier.

DUNBAR WON IN NINTH INNING FROM MASONTOWN

Exciting Game in the Furnace Town Kept Crowd on Edge; Good Plays Made.

Dunbar defeated Masontown in the ninth inning Saturday and the game kept the spectators on edge all the way through. Both pitchers were effective, but Pug Ritchey had the best of his opponents on the slab

Dunbar was also best in the field and the running catch of Ringer was the star play of the game The score

Itching Stopped—Skin Cooled.

Itching skin diseases afflict some people as soon as the hot weather comes. There seems to be no preventive but when the eruption does break out, it is a very simple matter to stop that itch, and to stop it instantly.

Just a few drops of Oil of Wintergreen, properly compounded, washed over the eruption will soothe and smooth the skin instantly, giving that cooling and refreshing sensation.

Try a few drops of this D. D. D. Compound and your itch will be relieved at once, not in half an hour, or ten minutes, but in five seconds. Call at our store and we will tell you more about this D. D. D. Compound.

U. P. PICNIC.

At Rock Point Thursday, August 5th To Be Big Affair.

Arrangements are almost completed for the fifth annual United Presbyterian Day outing at Rock Point. The date is Thursday, August 5th. This popular outing does not "grow dim with years," and this year promises to be larger and more enjoyable than ever. It is being recognized more and more as a day for meeting friends from "everywhere." This much is certain that it presents the most favorable opportunity for the reunion of families, of school and other friends who are widely separated of any day's outing that is held

In addition to the provisions of the park, the committee of arrangements have arranged an athletic tournament which will bring together many of the choicest amateur athletes of Western Pennsylvania and Eastern Ohio. It provides for a morning ball game at 10 30 o'clock In the afternoon the ball teams of Westminster and Muskingum Colleges will meet at 2.30 o'clock for their annual contest

1 P M. field events will be held embracing 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 40 yard dash, half-mile run, running broad jump, running high jump and other events For entrance in the field events, athletes are requested to address Rev Hugh Lamble Highland avenue, Etna, Pa.

Twenty one special trains have been provided to carry the excursionists The starting points of these trains are as follows: Over the P. R. R., Wilkinsburg, over the Pennsylvania Lines West, Pittsburg, one morning and one afternoon train, Washington, Burgettstown, Bellaire, Scilneville, Cadiz, Cambridge, Millersburg, Wooster, Youngstown, Erie, Stoneboro, New Wilmington, Redmond, and an afternoon train from New Castle Pittsburg & Lake Erie railroad, Connellsville and McKees Rocks. Over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, Sharpsburg and Butler

A cordial invitation is extended to all who enjoy a clean, wholesome outing to come and share in this day of reunion, or recreation and of good things. Rev. C. H Marshall, of Evans City, Pa., is in charge of arrangements.

The train from New Haven, P. & L. E station, will leave at 6 A M., to carry you to the park without change of cars.

DAZZLED BY THE MONEY

Young Express Clerk Confesses to Taking $10,000.

Chicago, July 20.—Clayton Zimmerman, twenty years old, a clerk in the "out money" department of the Adams Express company, last night confessed that he stole a package containing $10,000 which disappeared after it was shipped by the National Bank of the Republic to the Second National bank at Monmouth, Ill

All but $10 of the stolen money was recovered. It was found wrapped in a newspaper concealed behind the molding in the bathroom of the Zimmerman home. Zimmerman said that he took the money on the spur of the moment because he was dazzled by the thought of having so much to spend. His salary was only $50 a month.

ESCAPES A SECOND TIME

Sentenced Murderer Cuts His Way Through Prison Bars.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 20.—Martin Loskowski, a sentenced murderer, escaped from the Carbon county jail at Mauch Chunk by sawing the prison bars It is thought he had help from the outside and is being concealed by friends in the vicinity.

He was convicted about two years ago of the murder of his boarding mistress and sentenced to be hanged. While awaiting execution he escaped from prison and was not heard of again until about three months ago, when he was captured in Montana, where he had married and lived a model life for two years. By beating his wife he angered his mother-in-law, who informed the Montana authorities of his criminal record and he was brought back to Pennsylvania.

President Ebbetts of the Brooklyns Wants Star Chicago Catcher.

New York, July 20.—President Ebbetts of the Brooklyn National league club has made the Chicago club an offer of $20,000 for Catcher Johnny Kling. Ebbetts wants Kling to manage the Brooklyn club.

Kansas City, July 20.—Johnny Kling when shown the dispatch announcing the Brooklyn club's offer of $10,000 for his services said: "President Ebbetts has never made any communication with me in regard to my playing in Brooklyn But if the deal is consummated I will play with Brooklyn or any other club that meets my terms."

Judge Hand Defines Smuggling.

New York, July 20.—Failure to declare the entire contents of a trunk does not constitute an attempt to smuggle, according to a ruling of Judge Hand in the United States district court. This gives the government an unexpected setback in the recent seizure cases in which dressmakers have figured.

GAME AT FAIRMONT DID NOT COUNT ANY

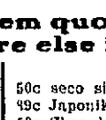

Rain Came Up in Fifth Inning Instead of Sixth, It Develops.

There was no game at Fairmont yesterday in spite of the report in a Uniontown morning paper to effect that the Cokers had won, 3 to 1, in six innings. As a matter of fact, the game only went 4¼ sessions, the rain breaking with Fairmont having two on the bases and one out As Fairmont was behind, the inning was not completed, it was no game

Conflicting reports were in circulation concerning the contest There was not a line in the Pittsburg papers on it this morning, but The Morning Herald gave the game almost in detail As a consequence of the interference of J. Pluvius, the Cokers will play two games in Fairmont today. Manager Alex Sweeney was greatly disappointed over the outcome of yesterday's contest, as he was confident of winning
